TRAINING OVERVIEW

TRAINING INTRODUCTION

Performance management is a journey to the brighter future of any organization. But research shows that poor achievement of organizational goals occurs as a result of lacking of effective performance management and appraisal system. The idea simply revolves around the concept that what cannot be appraised cannot be improved. Some managers may still think that the concept of performance management appraisal (or review) is another unnecessary management burden. But research proved that performance appraisal process can provide significant benefits to any type of organizations of any size operating in any field.

This workshop will provide delegates with tools and techniques to not only measure and appraise their organization's performance but to improve it.
